Physician's Weekly Announces Key Partnership With AACE

Basking Ridge, NJ – December 5, 2016 – Physician's Weekly, LLC (PW) has announced a new partnership with the American Association of Clinical Endocrinologists (AACE) that will begin in January 2017. Together, PW and AACE will focus on developing premium content for the Physician's Weekly Diabetes & Endocrinology Edition, a medical news wallboard distributed to approximately 1,400 locations across the United States.

PW is a nationally recognized publication throughout the medical industry. This partnership will allow PW to include insights from key opinion leaders who are part of the AACE community in their feature articles. Such content will include the thoughts of AACE key opinion leaders on topics ranging from clinical guidelines and landmark studies to other important AACE initiatives.

"PW delivers essential content within each of the specialty areas we serve," says Ezra Ernst, CEO of Physician's Weekly. "Our collaboration with AACE strengthens our commitment to our physician and healthcare provider audience by offering contributions from the most influential endocrinologists in the field."

"We consider this a critical facet of AACE's success: to be the most valuable resource for information about endocrine, diabetes, and metabolism issues," says Pauline Camacho, MD, FACE, President of AACE. "This partnership provides AACE with an exceptional opportunity to extend its collective expertise to a wider segment of the medical community."
